THOUSANDS GREET HILLIG, HOIRIS IN COPENHAGEN

Post and Gatty Pass Over Kazan, U. S. S. R., Early Today

COUPLES ARE PLEASED

Danish Fliers Rest; Gatty Post Team Made 5,000 Miles in Three Days

COPENHAGEN, June 26.—(INS)—Greeted by countless thousands, delirious with joy, Otto Hillig, Liberty, New York photographer and Holger Hoiris, Danish pilot, brought their monoplane "Liberty" down at the Kastrup Airport here today ending the trans-Atlantic flight that began at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, early Wednesday.

The adventurous pair who characterized their flight as that of a "couple of immigrants returning home" arrived at 2:05 p. m. (9:00 a. m., eastern daylight time) from Bremen, Germany, where they spent the night. They landed in the German city last evening nearly exhausted after wandering long for hours over Europe.

The trans-Atlantic flight itself ended at Krefeld, Germany, yesterday afternoon, but anxious to reach Copenhagen in the quickest possible time, the airmen took off again after a few hours' rest.

Remaining awake at the controls only with the greatest difficulty, Hoiris managed to take the plane as far north as Bremen but found it impossible to continue on to Copenhagen without a night's sleep.

Despite the long hours of waiting, the people of Copenhagen lost none of their enthusiasm. After standing all day yesterday at the airport, only to return home last evening when hope was virtually abandoned, thousands returned to the field today to greet the fliers. Touching scenes were enacted when the fliers stepped from their plane two hours and twenty-eight minutes after taking off from Bremen.

Hoiris was greeted by his white-haired mother, weeping for sheer joy. Hillig was embraced by his brother who, with other relatives had kept almost ceaseless vigil ever since the flight began.

KAZAN, U. S. S. R., June 26.—The American fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, passed over this city, 450 miles from Moscow, at 7:50 a. m. today (1:50 a. m. in Philadelphia), covering the distance in about two hours and fifty minutes on their way to Novo Sibirsk.

MOSCOW, June 26.—Flying in the air tracks of the Graf Zeppelin, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty sped away toward the wilderness of Siberia today on their attempt to lower the traveling time around the globe to ten days.

The American fliers hopped off at 5 a. m. (11 p. m. in Philadelphia) today in the blue and white monoplane Winnie Mae for Novosibirsk, 1,450 miles to the east. They planned to arrive about 5 P. M. (1 a. m. in Philadelphia) resuming their journey tomorrow to Irkutsk, 1,550 miles further.

They had hoped to make Irkutsk, the second largest city in Siberia, by tonight but the necessity of charting the 5,000-mile trek across the steppes delayed their departure. They faced some fog and poor visibility on the initial stages across the Ural Mountains.

When they left they had flown nearly 5,000 miles in three days, practically a third of an estimated distance of 15,000 miles. Possibly the most difficult part of their task faced them via Khabarovsk or Yakutsk, across the Sea of Okhotsk to Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, and thence across the Bering Sea to Nome, Alaska, where they hope to be on Sunday.

Miss Jessie Caulford, of Monroe street, is recuperating at her home after being ill for the past three weeks suffering with bronchitis.

Ocean Fliers

Captain George Endres (upper), and Captain Alexander Magyar are ready to hop off from New York for Budapest, Hungary, via Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, in their special low wing monoplane named "Justice for Hungary." The intrepid Hungarian airmen have been balked several times by unfavorable weather.

HEARING COMPLETED IN READING BRIDGE CASE

South Langhorne Residents Now Await Judge's Decision

OF INTEREST TO MANY

DOYLESTOWN, June 26.—The hearing was completed yesterday afternoon in the injunction proceedings brought by the Borough of South Langhorne against the Reading Company, and residents of the plainiff borough are now awaiting the decision to be reached by Judges Hiram H. Keller and Calvin S. Boyer.

Testimony was taken in the Court of Common Pleas, the plaintiff seeking to restrain the Reading Company from removing the bridge which they allege is quite necessary for everyday travel in that vicinity.

The Reading Company on the other hand alleges the bridge is unsafe to remain in its present condition, and that it should be removed to allow the electrification plans of the company to be completed.

Four tracks of the Reading Company run under the bridge in question, which connects South Langhorne and Langhorne Manor boroughs.

24 GET DIPLOMAS AT LANGHORNE; DR. HAND SPEAKS

"Keep Faith With Yourselves and With Service," Says Speaker

STUFFER IS THE LEADER

Legion Medals Given to Students of Eighth Grade

LANGHORNE, June 26.—"Keep faith with yourselves and with service," admonished Dr. Howard Edmund Hand, of Germantown, as he addressed the 24 members of the 1931 class of Langhorne-Middletown High School, when commencement exercises took place at the Casino, South Langhorne, last evening.

The subject of the message by the well-known minister, was "Keeping Faith With Big Ideals." He told of the immeasurable value of high ideals, and in answering his own question, "What counts in life?" he told the graduates and large audience assembled that ambition, alertness, determination, enthusiasm, conscience, and education all mean much.

The young men and women who have just completed their high school work were also advised by Dr. Hand to get married. "Get married," he said, "Not this year—abide your time, but by all means get married."

Those who last evening received their diplomas were seated upon the platform, attired in caps and gowns of dark gray. The program included musical numbers, addresses and awarding of prizes.

The processional march was by the high school orchestra; and the invocation was given by Rev. Henry Cunningham, pastor of the Langhorne Presbyterian Church.

James Townsend, a member of the class of '31, delivered the president's address, "How high school students use leisure time." The young man stated that parents should see that students make better use of their leisure time spent at home.

Selections by the high school chorus included "Bells of St. Mary's" (Adams) and "Morning" (Speaks-Baldwin). The senior class also sang the class song; with the assemblage giving the alma mater.

One of the highlights of the evening was a special commencement project, given in two parts. Miss Margaret Perry told of the growth of the high school in the last 15 years; while the second part of the project, "Our Graduates" (Continued on Page 3)

This was his environment and with a father, mother and brothers who were infidels.

"One night some of the cowboys went into a mission to raise rough house, but Rev. Ranton was saved, and started at once to preach the gospel. His family and friends scoffed at him, but since that time all have been saved through his preaching. He has a wonderful story to tell. Sunday morning he will speak at 10:30 and in the evening he will preach in his cowboy outfit. Evening service is 7:45.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED IN CROYDON

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jost Have Been Married 25 Years

LUCY GIRARD'S PARTY

CROYDON, June 26.—A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jost, of Patterson avenue, Saturday evening, this being their 25th wedding anniversary. A surprise it was. The happy couple were enjoying the radio when the group arrived.

Lunch was prepared by relatives and a large birthday cake presented on a silver platter by their daughter, Lillian. This being a silver anniversary, they were the recipients of many gifts in silver.

Those who comprised the party were: Mr. and Mrs. L. Jost and daughter, Lillian, Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson and family, Mrs. B. Girard and family, Joseph Minnick, of Croydon; Mr. and Mrs. A. Schmidt, of Rutherford, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. John Jost, of Reading; Mr. and Mrs. Pollock, of Germantown; Mr. and Mrs. Sebras, of Parkland.

The luncheon given by the Cornwells sewing guild at the Presbyterian Hall, Eddington, Wednesday, was a very social and successful affair with Mrs. Becker in charge. It was through her strenuous work, assisted by her committee that it proved a success. The guild will resume sewing in September.

Miss Lucy Girard, of Patterson avenue, celebrated her sixth birthday Wednesday, from 1 to 5 p. m. The party was a very charming affair. Refreshments were served; and games of all kinds enjoyed and Miss Lucy was delighted with all her pretty presents. Those present were: Martha Louch, Dorothy Morgan, Lillian Grupp, James Robinson, Joseph Girard; and Miss Dorothy Girard chaperoned the party. Regrets were sent by Miss Gonzales, who was recuperating after an illness and unable to attend.

Tragedy Occurs On Farm Occupied for A Time by Harold Williams, Who Awaits Execution in Prophet Murder Case—Family Working in Field in Warrington Township

Doylestown, June 26.—Philip G. Dovgaluk, 14-year-old honor student at the Doylestown High School, was killed instantly today when struck by a bolt of lightning while turning hay on a farm in Warrington Township three miles south of here. The youth was aiding his father and mother when he was struck down.

The father was also stunned by the bolt but picked the boy up and carried him into the house, summoning Constable Frank McGrory, a neighbor, who called Coroner John J. Sweeney, of Doylestown, who pronounced the boy dead.

Besides his father, Onufri, and mother, Eurodick Dovgaluk, the dead youth is survived by two sisters, Marina, 9, and Nina, 11.

Only a week ago he passed from the sophomore class to the junior class of the Doylestown High School with honors.

The tragedy took place on the same farm at Warrington township, once occupied by Harold Williams, the man awaiting execution for his part in the murder of William F. Prophet, of Philadelphia, his brother-in-law, Williams' sister, wife of the slain man, received a life term for her part in the murder. The Williams family lived on the farm until February last, when the Prophet murder took place. Then the wife of the accused man moved away.

The Dovgaluk family then moved on the farm a few weeks later. They had mown the hay and were turning it during a slight shower to enable it to cure properly when suddenly a brilliant flash of lightning came and Philip sank to the ground as the shock echoed across the field.

The bolt had struck him on top of the head, passing through his entire body. The father, a few feet away, was knocked down by the shock but recovered and stumbled to the house a short distance away with the motionless form of his son in his arms. The mother followed and tried to revive the youth. She broke down when she learned Philip had been killed.

The Dovgaluks, who are Russians, had moved to the farm desiring to earn sufficient money to send their young son to high school and later to college, with the idea of studying medicine.

In approving the bill the Governor said:

"It has been suggested that the highway, which for the larger part of the 40 miles runs close to the canal, be widened and otherwise radically changed. I wish it clearly understood that this administration is opposed to any such change. The road, in its way, as beautiful as the canal. It is far more desirable to preserve it in its present condition than to make travel over it a little more speedy. Speedways are provided elsewhere but I have seen no other such road in Pennsylvania."

Under the agreement with the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, the maintenance of water in the canal is assured for five years without cost to the state, and thereafter upon reasonable terms.

HARRISBURG, June 26.—(INS)—Construction of additional bridges across the Delaware will be left entirely in the hands of the two commissions created to study and direct the work, Governor Pinchot said today (Continued on Page 6)

LATEST NEWS

Greenfield, Ind., June 26.—Mrs. Carrie Barrett Simmons, whose two daughters were killed by eating poisonous sandwiches at a family picnic, Sunday, was in custody of county burial of the two girls. The mother was to be held pending grand jury investigation after authorities found no outsiders had access to the sandwiches after Mrs. Simmons made them. Thirteen of the eighteen sandwiches contained strychnine-filled capsules and only the fact that one of the capsules fell out as the guests started eating prevented more being stricken. John Simmons, the father, has been in custody but will not be held further. Prosecutor Ben M. Feifers was trying to ascertain if Mrs. Simmons had carefully marked the poison sandwiches and learned that some of them were fastened with one toothpick and others with two.

STATE NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST

ALLENTOWN.—An animal Utopia, where the lion (if one were present) would doubtless lie down with the lamb, has been discovered by animal and nature lovers, nestled in the Lehigh mountains near here.

The "Utopia" is the stock farm of E. A. Gerlach. Here little kittens have German shepherd dogs as playmates, baby chicks romp with cats and kids and dogs exist in perfect equanimity. The farm boasts about 40 dogs, 20 cats, 20 goats, innumerable chickens and sheep, hogs and cattle.

The animals were acquired by the Gerlachs as pets and since they began collecting them, Gerlach reports, there has been little enmity or ill-will between them.

MEADVILLE.—Battle of the state highway department against an extensive swamp over which State Highway No. 15 is being laid, is being won, department engineers said after inspecting the location near here.

Approximately 270,000 cubic yards of earth have been poured into the morass since construction began without a solid roadbed being laid. Operations were halted by the highway department when it was thought a fill could not be made successfully. The recent inspection, however, led engineers to believe that additional filling will drain the swamp so the highway can be extended across it.

A GROUNDLESS FEAR

The medical director of the Life Extension Institute has just been telling fellow workers that the regular "he-man" style of American masculinity has retreated before the advance of a "soft," fluffy creature who lives longer but gets far less out of life and gives society less than the old-fashioned "rough-neck." He fears that unless a change is effected, modern men will be a sex of pink-and-whites, not worth much measured by the standards of two or three, or more generations ago. Another fear is that even if his warning is taken as seriously as he seems to view it, at least a century will be needed to bring about the physical improvement he has in mind. He explains that the men of today live more years than their grandfathers only because they have been given extraordinary protection by science and that the same means is the force which will pamper until the human race will not be able to take care of itself.

The medical director probably is giving himself unnecessary alarm over the future of the races. Evidence that the modern man has become a "soft," pink-and-white effeminate, are not so distributed that every one who runs may see, and interpret them as does the medical director. In fact the reverse may be claimed. On the strictly physical score the up-to-date race asks no odds of its ancestry. The world has more strong men than ever. The classical periods knew no such lists of women and girl athletes in all branches of physical excellence.

The man of today not only lives longer, thanks to science, but lives better, more happily, can hit harder, run faster, swim farther and when at work can turn out more than the product of any age.

BILLBOARD BAN UPHOLD

The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court has affirmed the principle, previously enunciated in many other jurisdictions, that "beauty in the sense intended and employed in the framing and administration of the rules and regulations (governing billboards) is in fact a real and substantial economic value to the commonwealth and to its citizens."

This judicial opinion was given in actions brought to restrain highway authorities from enforcing laws regulating erection and maintenance of signboards along highways and in public parks. It sustains the right of the state to keep this form of advertising out of sight of natural parks and 50 feet from any public way and to bar signs from any place where, in its judgment, having regard to health, safety, fire hazard or scenic beauty, they would be harmful to the public welfare.

Once more the courts have given human rights precedence over property rights. They have safeguarded the right of the public to unobstructed and unblemished highways and to nature's beauty uncorrupted by the greed of man.

Property rights must be considered, but destruction or obscuration of the scenery that borders the country's highways is a dear price to pay for the petty gain accruing to a few from unrestricted outdoor advertising.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin

Travers Lorrimer, shell-shocked war veteran and son of wealthy Mary Lou Thurston, mistakes pretty Mary Lou Thurston for Delight Hartford, whom he is supposed to have married in England. Mrs. Lorrimer induces Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight, of whom no trace can be found. Travers is told he must begin again with friendship. His interest in life is renewed. No mention is made of his marriage until the visit of Larry Mitchell, Mary Lou's friend. Then Travers, believing Larry is in love with Mary Lou, reminds her she is his wife. At Christmas, Mary Lou, irritated by Travers' lack of holiday spirit, terms him selfish. Brought to his senses, he joins his mother and Mary Lou in delivering gifts to the needy.

CHAPTER XXV.

LORRIMER said very little, but Mary Lou could sense his unhappiness, his uneasiness. It wouldn't, she thought, hurt him. And it might help.

The last address on the list reached and taken care of, Lorrimer, glancing at his mother's notebook, indicated the considerable remainder of the packages and asked:

"Where are these going?"

"To the Veterans' hospital," she answered, quietly, and gave the address to the chauffeur.

Lorrimer said nothing for a minute. Then he muttered:

"No—not there. . . I—can't."

"You needn't come in, Lorry," said Mary Lou, "you can wait outside with Rodgers."

Her voice was perfectly friendly but a little cool. Lorrimer did not reply. On the long ride uptown he was silent, struggling with himself. Black memories thronged him. He couldn't. It wasn't in him. It was inhuman to ask it of him! He'd tried to forget. . . tried. Yet he must, he had to do it, whether he could or not. Out of sheer stubborn pride, to show her that he wasn't quite the weakling she thought him. Not quite.

So he went into the place with them, the bare echoing place with its smell of disinfectant, its speechless story of patience and suffering, its silent record of failure and success.

Out of the Past.

He walked through the ward to which Mrs. Lorrimer, followed by Mary Lou and Rodgers, made her way. Walked through it, not looking to right or left. Just—remembering. And suddenly he heard a voice. . .

"Lieutenant. . . Lorrimer!"

A husky voice, broken. . . a shattered voice. For this was the peculiar ward, from which transfers were made to the upstate sanitarium.

Lorrimer started, turned. . . and halted beside a bed.

"Mac!"

"Sure! Gosh! where've you been? I've tried to get in touch with you, but guess the address was wrong. Gee, you look great! What a lucky break!"

He was thin and very dark, the shadow of a man, with the most eager eyes in the world, the most whimsical and the most gallant smile.

"Mother," said Lorrimer, unevenly, as his little advance party stopped, and turned around, "Delight—"

His voice was broken, too. This was "Mac," Jimmy McEwan, the best pal, the best mechanic that ever lived.

Mrs. Lorrimer came back to the bed, and Mary Lou followed and shook hands with the attenuated, perfectly-at-ease mortal as Lorrimer made presentations. And presently they went about their benevolent business while Lorrimer sat beside Mac's bed and answered, or tried to answer, the hundreds of questions Mac poured out on him. He looked great—Did he remember this? Did he remember that? Had he forgotten that old crate of theirs. . . the one he'd named the Flying Fury? What had become of Captain Parkes? Did he ever hear from Smitty? And about a thousand more.

Lorrimer answered, at first with difficulty, then with more ease. He couldn't let Mac see anything was wrong. Of himself, he said merely that he'd been living out of town.

He stayed nearly an hour while the men Mrs. Lorrimer had come to see, waiting patiently until Lorrimer should give the signal. Finally he gave it, rising and looking down on the glowing, moved face of the lonely, courageous man in the narrow white bed. Tubercular—and crippled. . . and. . . laughing.

"I didn't make you," she said, at once, "you—made yourself."

So Christmas Day came. Cold and clear and perfect, the Christmas Day of a bright, tinselled card. For snow had fallen the night before and Westwood was eroded in white, soft and shining, the bare branches of the trees glittering with frost, with silver armor, and a pale golden sun shone bravely in the cloudless Winter sky.

Larry arrived with absurd presents for Mary Lou and funny little remembrances for the others. And the big tree, which Mary Lou and Mrs. Lorrimer and Travers had trimmed the night before, blazed with lights and ropes of gold and silver, shone with stars and guarded the heaps of packages, gayly papered, and gayly tied, which lay at the base like strange and colorful fruit.

Mary Lou was more than taken

"It asks no promise," he said, low.

When Lorrimer left, it was with the understanding that he would come back often. He would keep in touch with McEwan and Mac was to write him for anything he wanted or needed. That perhaps he could get him the desired transfer or, if not, would make other plans for him himself.

In the car:

"Wouldn't it be possible for us to take him out of there and send him at my expense to a sanitarium?" he wanted to know. "I spoke to the nurse about it. I can go back and see the head doctor. If there's a chance for a cure. . . we can get him well and find him a job. . . or something. He's a corker—Mac," said Lorrimer simply.

Good Medicine.

Mrs. Lorrimer felt tears rise in her throat and Mary Lou's eyes were dim. They hadn't seen him so eager, so taken out of himself—Mrs. Lorrimer, since his return, and Mary Lou in her knowledge of him. Mac was—good medicine. And Lorrimer himself saw to it that Mac's Christmas was a bountiful one.

When they were home again and he was alone for a minute with Mary Lou, he said, quite simply:

"Thank you for making me go. Delight. I wouldn't have missed that meeting with Mac. And how close I came to missing it."

No Promise.

And from Lorrimer there were books and candy, stockings and a one small square box from Cartier's.

Mary Lou opened it and her eyes widened and then flew to Mrs. Lorrimer's in appeal.

A ring. A square cut sapphire set in platinum and with a frosty lace work of diamonds about it!

"Oh, Lorry!" said Mary Lou, helplessly.

With Larry watching, whistling aimlessly to himself, and under Mrs. Lorrimer's anxious eyes, Lorrimer crossed to Mary Lou's side and stood with her under the many colored lights of the tall, lovely tree.

"It asks no promise," he said, low; "it rivets no fetters. But you don't wear the other ring—any more, Delight."

"The ring?" she whispered, unconscious that she spoke for his ears alone.

"The seal ring. We—didn't have time for any other," he said (To Be Continued Tomorrow)

FARMER OF TODAY CAN CLAIM WASHINGTON KIN

First President Experimented; Wrote of The Calling

TELLS OF CRUDE DRILL

"The modern farmer, who is always trying new farm methods, can certainly claim kinship of spirit with George Washington," Secretary of Agriculture Hyde remarked with conviction.

The Secretary had been consulted by a representative of the Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, for light on the workings of a certain plow which Washington mentions in his Diaries as of his own invention. The query had set Secretary Hyde to a new reading of Washington's journals and correspondence, with the result of convincing him that scientific research in agriculture had a firm friend and constant practitioner in the Nation's first President.

"Washington," said Secretary Hyde, "was apparently moved to experiment on his broad acres partly because of dissatisfaction with farm practice then prevailing, and partly because he wanted so to farm his lands as to leave them in better shape than when he acquired them. I find that in 1786 he wrote to Arthur Young, editor of the English Annals of Agriculture, as follows:

"The system of agriculture, if it deserves the epithet of system, which is in use in this part of the United States, is as unproductive to the practitioners as it is ruinous to landholders. Yet it is pertinaciously adhered to. To forsake it; to pursue a course of husbandry, which is altogether different, and new to the gazing multitude, ever averse to novelty in matters of this sort, and much attached to the customs of their forefathers, requires resolution, and, without a good practical guide, may be dangerous; because, of the many volumes which have been written on this subject, few have been founded on experimental knowledge; are verbose, contradictory, and bewildering. Your Annals, therefore, shall be this guide."

"Feeling as he did," Secretary Hyde continued, "and having no State or Federal agricultural research bodies to turn to, Washington conducted his own research, with his own farm and laboratory. What he wanted to know about this or that new crop of machine or cultural method, he had to find out mainly for himself. From the Annals, and from a few other such sources, Washington derived many suggestions, but he accepted them with reservations, subject to actual test on his own farm.

"Thus we find him, in the fall of 1764, sowing 'a few Oats to see if they would stand the winter,' and finding, of course, that they wouldn't. He made many experiments with Lucerne—which we know as alfalfa. He tried winter wheat and barley and spelt. He attempted to utilize marle, mud from the river bottoms, and composts of various sorts, as fertilizer.

"But plows especially drew his attention, for the plows of Washington's Day were cumbersome, inefficient and altogether exasperating. In March, 1760, Washington jotted down, for example, 'Fitted a two Eyed Plow instead of a Duck Bill Plow.' But this new model was on the whole a failure, so a little later we find him recording, 'Spent the greater part of the day in making a plow of my own invention.' The next day he tried the plow 'and found She answered very well.'

"But a greater difficulty for Washington," Secretary Hyde went on, "was finding a machine to do what the modern grain drill does at planting time. Washington finally developed, evidently from hints gathered from his reading and correspondence with Arthur Young and others what he called a barrel plow.

"At that time all grain seed had to be sown by hand, then covered with a harrow or a hoe. Washington wanted a machine for this purpose, both to save labor and to do the job more efficiently. His barrel plow consisted of a hollow cylinder of wood, mounted on a wheel plow, so arranged that as the plow moved forward the barrel turned. In this barrel Washington cut holes for the seed to run down the tubes into the ground. This thickness or thinning of the sowing he could determine, roughly, by the number of holes left open in the barrel.

"Much experiment with this crude drill convinced Washington that it was necessary to make these holes larger on the outside than on the inside of the barrel, and that the barrel worked better if not kept too full of seed. A harrow followed the drill, to cover the seed with soil.

"The drill must have worked fairly well," Secretary Hyde smiled as he called up the picture of Washington's 'own invention,' even though at times it must have acted up and prompted the operator to indulge in a few expletives. Washington wrote to a friend that the drill would not 'work to good effect in land that is very full of either stumps, stones, or large clods; but, where the ground is tolerably free from these and in good tilth, and particularly in light land, I am certain you will find it equal to your most sanguine expectations, for Indian corn, wheat, barley, pease, or any other tolerably round grain, that you may wish to sow or plant in this manner."

"Though the modern farmer knows many things that Washington could not know," Secretary Hyde ended, "a rereading of his life and experiments as a farmer must be of constant interest and inspiration."

You see the Governor has taken a violent dislike to anyone who would be so crude as to stroke the jewsharp toward the cheek instead of away from it, and he's found a worthy exponent of his beliefs in smiling Frank above. ## Gas on Your Stomach

Is positive proof that "our food is not digesting properly, but is fermenting, sending poisons throughout your system. The symptoms of this self-poisoned condition (doctors call it auto-intoxication) present themselves in such forms as a constant tired and worn-out feeling, headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, hiccups, rheumatic pains, chronic constipation and a general run-down system.

Don't let this poisoned condition go a minute longer unattended. It is dangerous! It is the breeder of many serious diseases.

There is a wonderful new discovery which helps eliminate these poisons from your system. Thousands are praising it because of the way it helped them. Go to your drug store and ask for a bottle of ACTONA—the Active Remedy. Sold everywhere in the green and red package. FOR YOUR OWN SAKE, DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

ACTONA is the vitamin-active tonic—the remedy that gets at the CAUSE of your troubles. And there is only one genuine ACTONA. Refuse all substitutes.

HARRIMAN FIELD CLUB
WINS OVER INDEPENDENTS

Schedule For Tonight
ST. ANNS vs. FEDERALS
(At St. Ann's Field)
A. O. H. vs. EMILIE
(At Emilie)

(By T. M. Juno)
Although held to four hits, the Harriman Field Club managed to score eight times to defeat the Independents 8-6 in the opening game of the second half of the Bristol Twilight League last night on St. Ann's Field.
The "Indies" counted on their runs in the second canto and after that were held scoreless by Jeffries. Poor base-running can also be attributed to the causes of the Independents' loss.
"Tut" Romeo started on the peak for the losers and retired at the end of the third frame when his arm began to weaken. Maris Hart took up the burden for the fourth and his own wildness plus two long flies and an infield hit accounted for four runs. Hart was charged with the defeat.
Leo Crohe began on the peak for the Harriman team and after a heavy battling spree of the Independents in the second was replaced by Jeffries who silenced the "Indies" bats for the remainder of the fray. Jeffries was credited with the victory.
B. Avella started the Independents' scoring with a double to left; J. Massilla was passed; Tosti was hit with a pitched ball, loading the sacks; Antonelli fled out; Connors singled to left, scoring Avella and Massilla; Gaffney was hit with a pitched ball, again filling the sacks; Jeffries then replaced Crohe; Romeo singled to right, counting Tosti and Connors; Purcell's hit to left counted Gaffney and Romeo; Bonafrancesco and Avella were easy outs.
The sixth ward club scored in their part. Jeffries tripled to left and scored on Romeo's error of D. McDewitt's roller.
In the third E. McDewitt's double, an infield out; an error by Tosti, two passes, and a hit by D. McDewitt scored three Harriman runs.
Four runs in the fourth won the game for the first half champs. Kohler was hit; McDewitt was passed; Dougherty hit to Bonafrancesco, who errored, filling the sacks; Brady lifted a long fly to Connors, Kohler scoring after the catch; Morrell singled to Tosti, scoring McDewitt; Carp's long fly to center scored Dougherty; Morrell stole third; and came home on a balk by Hart; Jeffries fled out.

POLLYANNA
"Easy-Terms"
Europeans visiting this country often express astonishment at the American practice of buying homes, automobiles, clothing, house furnishings, etc., on the installment plan. This "astonishment" is a little inconsistent when we consider their methods of repaying U. S. Loans. However, this is beside the question. We came across an article the other day concerning an "easy-terms" gentleman and his diary which we believe well worth repeating here:

Evening Creation

Cobweb lace outlined with tiny bead designs fashions the lovely evening frock displayed above by Ruth Selwyn, film notable. Fitting to the figure, the dress graduates out in flaring fullness at the hemline with a short peplum emphasizing the waistline. The general effect is charming in the extreme.

"January 4. Bought an automobile today. Very easy terms. Very fine car, with cigar lighter on dash. Ought to finish payments on this in eighteen months."
"February 4. Paid installment due on car. Bought a radio set on easy terms. Fine set, and payments will be small and monthly."

Latest for Beach

Lita Chevre, screen player, shows the very latest creation in beach pajamas, hats and bathing suit, which is blue in two shades, and white, with the hat a light shade of blue. An intriguing picture for any beach.

WATCHES

A watch is one of the most delicate pieces of mechanism in existence.
Anyone can break a watch — but it takes an expert watchmaker to repair it.
That's why our Repair Department employs men who know watches inside and out — Swiss movement or American.

The Jantzen Shoulders

Although the United States Army Air Corps in May theoretically repulsed an invading "enemy," leaders in the aircraft industry feel that were it not for America's reserve strength as represented by civil aviation, the United States could not feel too optimistic about the result of an actual future conflict in the clouds. They point to the gigantic military air forces being created by other nations in contrast to that of the United States. As consolation, however, America today has more than 10,500 planes which could be converted into military units in little more than 72 hours, in the opinion of Captain Thomas B. Doe, West Point graduate, official of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and vice-president of North America Aviation. Photos show an army airplane, a huge Condor bomber, and the big 21-passenger transport Condor, evolved from the military ship and now flown by Eastern Air Transport. Only a few hours' work would be required to attach bomb and machine gun racks to the passenger plane shown in lower photo.

"March 7. A little late with payment on the car this month, and will have to let the radio payment go over till April, as I bought a set of books and paid $11 down. Very fine books. Everybody should have this set of books."
"April 15. Borrowed $50 from the boss to meet payment on car. The radio man came to take away the set, but we put out the lights and weren't at home. The chump hung around all evening, so I couldn't see to read the books."
"June 1. Borrowed $100 from Uncle George to pay the $50 I borrowed from the boss, and also to meet payments on the car. Got behind a little on the book payments, because I bought a piece of land in a new real estate development. This land ought to jump in value. Paid $50 down."
"August 15. Somehow I don't miss the radio set much. And you can get plenty of books from the public library. The thing that hurts is that Uncle George should be so mean. Of course I told him I'd pay back the $100 on August 1st; but you can't do the impossible, can you? Trying to arrange a character loan from the bank. If I can borrow $250, I can get square again and everything will go fine."
"August 16. Bank says I have no character. What a bunch of crooks!"
"September 30. The garage man is holding the car for that labor bill. What right have they to hold the car? It doesn't belong to me."
"October 1st. It wasn't any use. Had to let the car go. Anyway, I'd rather have the piece of land. They have given me a month's grace on that. Real estate people have more heart, after all."

"November 15. Well, they can have their old land. Good riddance. If I knew where to get $30 to meet the payment on the piano, I'd be all right. Bought a new automobile today, on the "pay out of income" basis."
"November 16. Income stopped. Got the sack at the office. In looking for a job you've got to have a suit of clothes, so I bought one this afternoon. Five dollars down."
The groom (immediately after the ceremony): "Phew! I never was so rattled in all my life."
The bride: "And you seemed so cool and collected. Oh, Bob, how could you begin deceiving me at the very altar?"
When a husband gives his wife a pair of socks, they should never be to the jaw.
She: "Did you tell anybody about my pies?"
He: "Oh, yes! I had to tell my physician what ailed me."
Jim: "How long have you been married?"
Bill: "Long enough to learn that there are some things you can't say with flowers."
When you have explained your proposition and the man says: "I'll consider it," don't be fooled. He won't.

Even the man who tries to obey the law by doing nothing may get pinched for non-support, vagrancy or loitering.
Pinchot Approves
Buckman Bill
in announcing his veto on the appropriation intended to finance three such bridges.
The Governor approved the Roberts Senate Bill which appropriated $25,000 to a joint commission with New Jersey for a study regarding the need of additional bridges on the upper Delaware. The commission is empowered to build such bridges as it may deem necessary.
The Governor had approved a similar measure for a commission for the lower Delaware.
The bill vetoed appropriated $3,600,000 for a bridge between Phillipsburg and Easton, while the other proposed a bridge between Wilbertha, New Jersey and Yardley at a cost of $2,000,000.
The Governor during the forenoon vetoed 60 measures and signed 8, leaving 98 still to be acted upon before midnight Saturday.
